WORLD tension, the stress and strain of power politics, the heat and passion of hate-engendering ideologies, the fear of one half of the world that what it holds dear is threatened by the other half, have turned the Korean incident into a matter of intimate concern to everyone. The affair is not comparable with Belgium in 1914 and Poland in 1939. The South Koreans, as a people, are not likely to wring hearts or get even as much sympathy as the Ethiopians got when Mussolini set out upon conquest. The war in Korea is in any case a civil war in the sense that China's war was a civil war. That fact again is of minor consequence. What matters is the sponsorship of the North by Russia and the sponsorship of the South by the United States. It does not follow from this dangerous fact that a global war is inevitable or even likely.

If the alternative to North Korean withdrawal from the South should begin to look like real East-West war, it is probable that the Russians would order withdrawal. At the same time, the discomfiture of North Korea as a result of a forcible American intervention would not seriously diminish the influence of the Soviet in Asia. The unification of Korea under the Communist rulers of the North, or the other hand, would heavily damage America's policy for the "containment" of Communism in Asia and give fresh impetus to the nationalist movements in Indo-China and Malaya. In the absence of an effective Security Council in which Russia would take her seat, the matter must remain one in which the two parties most directly concerned—the Soviet and the U.S.—are left to decide the issue. And the outcome will depend on whether Russia is or is not prepared to meet the United States in a global war. Almost certainly she is not so prepared.

THE North Koreans are said to be within 12 miles of Seoul, the Southern capital. By the time the cease fire becomes effective, they will probably have occupied the town. As far as the Koreans are concerned, that should be the end of active hostilities. If withdrawal is then firmly insisted upon, the North Koreans will probably make it a condition that there should be general elections over the entire country, with the object of establishing a unified Korean administration. If they show willingness to let such elections be supervised by U.N. it may be difficult for the U.S. to resist the proposal. The Americans are themselves heartily sick of the inefficiency and corruption of Seoul; and Congress some time ago refused to pass the Korean appropriation act for by the President. And how far these problems are the whole problem no one outside of Moscow and Washington can say.

A LOOK at the map will show Korea jutting out, promontory-wise from the Manchurian mainland to within relatively short distance of the Japanese coast. With America in the Southern part, backed by naval and air strength, China, Manchuria, which borders Russia, becomes, in the calculations of Peking and Moscow, threatened. With the Russians, backed by Port Arthur to the West and Vladivostok to the North-east and the whole of the Chinese mainland behind, Japan itself, in the calculations of Washington and General MacArthur, is threatened. General MacArthur's recent anti-Communist decrees, together with the fact that it is the intention of the United States to conclude a separate peace treaty with Japan, which will leave the United States in strategic control of Honshu, the main island of Japan, have probably been the urge behind the North Korean move. Jockeying for position is, indeed, the main preoccupation of East and West in the Far East. And war in that area is as nearly inevitable as such things can be. It is a fair assumption that it will not be soon. And the longer it is put off the better, perhaps, is the chance of settling the China problem at U.N. and re-establishing a machinery of war-prevention which has worked pretty well on the whole.

Swing to West Seen in Persian Cabinet Change

TEHRAN, Monday (AP). — The Iranian Cabinet resigned today and the President immediately announced the appointment of General Ali Razmara, Chief of the Army General Staff, as the new premier.

General Razmara presented his cabinet to the Shah this evening. With two exceptions the new cabinet is composed of people who have never been ministers before.

Dr. Tahmaseb, former National Economy Minister, is now Minister of Finance. The other Ministers are: Dr. Mohammad Nafisi, Labor; General Abdolkarim Hedayat, War; Mohammad Ali Bousari, Justice; Dr. Mostafa Amoubeh, National Economy; Mohammad Mahdavi, Agriculture; Mahmoud Salahi, Foreign Affairs; Fatahollah Bahrami, Interior; Dr. Jahanbakhsh Sahli, Health; and Dr. Shamseddin Jaberri, Education.

Two Ministries remain vacant — Post and Telegraph and Communications.

Middle East Reaction

CAIRO, Monday (AP). — Middle East diplomatic quarters consider the appointment today of anti-Communist Army boss, General Ali Razmara, as Premier designate — less than 24 hours after news reached Tehran that South Korea had been invaded — of major importance.

Observers here believe it puts Iran squarely behind the U.S. and the West. That is considered extremely significant since Iran is Soviet Russia's southern neighbor and one of the hottest fronts in the cold war.

The belief is widespread that General Razmara's appointment will be followed by new U.S. action to bulwark Iran against Communism. American diplomats in Tehran are known to have recommended a U.S. economic aid programme but stipulated that it should not begin during the regime of Premier Ali Mansur, who quit today.

U.K. Sale of Tanks To Israel Queried

LONDON, Monday, (Reuter). — Minister of Supply George Strauss dismissed a Conservative member's complaint that Churchill tanks are being sold to Israel. Mr. W. A. Steward told the House of Commons that the tanks, stripped of their armaments, are "being sold at substantial profits and shipped to a Mediterranean Sea port."

Mr. Steward said they are being sold "to Israel despite the declaration by the Western Powers that that country has already sufficient defensive weapons for her needs."

Three Tax Relief Measures Voted

By MOSHE BRILLIANT

In preparation for the voting today on the IL 59,465,000 estimates for ordinary expenditure to be covered by internal revenue, the Knesset yesterday passed a series of tax amendments.

It also rejected motions for far-reaching revisions in income tax policy, including one which had passed its second reading in the Finance Committee. This motion provided for lowering the ceiling on income tax (including the war surtax) from 75 per cent to 60 per cent. Finance Minister Eliezer Kaplan and the Chairman of the Finance Committee, Mr. David Pinchas, both attested that the State could not yet afford the loss of revenue this series of relief measures would entail. All the proposals, however, will be considered by a special committee of the Finance Committee which is studying income tax policy with a view to recommending amendments next year.

Tax Relief

Three tax relief measures, however, were passed, introduced by the Government and designed to serve as an inducement to export, higher output and savings, they provide:

1. The Finance Minister may grant exemptions of tax on account of earnings from exports;
2. There will be a ten per cent income tax ceiling on earnings as bonuses for high output, providing bonuses do not exceed 15 per cent of total earnings;
3. Deductions will be allowed on account of savings invested in Government bonds to be effected by the Finance Minister. Those deductions may not exceed IL 500 and

British Fleet Commander Welcomed at Port Cities

TEL AVIV, Monday. — While H.M.S. Surprise moved slowly into Tel Aviv Port, Admiral Sir John Edelman, Commander of the British Mediterranean Fleet, called on Prime Minister David Ben Gurion at his own house in Tel Aviv, and was later received by Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett and the Chief of Staff, Rav-Aloof Yigael Yadin.

Sir John had come from Haifa, where he was received with elaborate ceremony which included a 21-gun salute from a shore battery in reply to his salute to the State.

Sir John, who came here by road, was accompanied by Sgan Kvarint Shaul Ben Zvi, of the Israeli Navy, and Lt. Col. Peter Pender-Cudlipp, the British Military Attaché. He first called at the Residence of the British Minister, Sir Knox Helm, and then visited Mr. Ben Gurion and Mr. Sharett.

When Admiral Edelman expressed his surprise that Israel, a small country, could take in so many immigrants, the Prime Minister replied: "It is all a question of conditions. When there were three million inhabitants in the England and Scotland of Queen Elizabeth's time, nobody would have ventured to say that 50 millions would one day live there."

After calling on the Ministry for Foreign Affairs, the British guest signed the visitors' book at the President's Office at Hakirya. Thence he proceeded to Army G.H.Q. where he met the Chief of Staff, returning to the ship shortly after one o'clock.

Queuille Asked To Form French Govt.

PARIS, Monday (UPI). — President Vincent Auriol, described by aides as "greatly disturbed" by the outbreak of war in Korea, today called on former Premier Henri Queuille to seek a swift end to France's government crisis.

M. Queuille resigned as premier in October, 1949, when he refused to grant wage increases for which the Socialists were pressing.

Labour Under Fire On Schuman Plan

LONDON, Monday, (Reuter). — Former Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, launching a combined Conservative-Liberal onslaught on the British government today for its handling of the Schuman Plan, said the break-down of the proposal would have far-reaching repercussions on West European security and defence against Communism.

Mr. Eden was moving a joint Opposition motion in the House of Commons urging the Government to join the current Schuman Plan talks with the reservation that, if the plan proved impracticable, Britain could withdraw.

The Government, facing one of the most crucial foreign affairs debates since the war, was countering with an amendment welcoming French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman's initiative but indicating that Britain could not take part in the talks if committed in advance to accept a supranational "high authority" to control the integrated coal and steel resources of Europe.

A Prime Minister Clement Attlee and Opposition leader Winston Churchill were to fight the final round in the debate before the vital vote tomorrow night.

If the Government is then defeated, it would mean a general election, but odds tonight appeared to be on a narrow victory for Prime Minister Attlee's slender majority.

Mr. Eden attacked the Government attitude to the talks in a packed house tense and sombre with the news from Korea. A break-down of the Schuman talks, he asserted, would mean a return to the narrowest form of European nationalism.

He thought it "absolutely right" to say that, if Britain did not try to make the Schuman Plan succeed, it would certainly fail and be replaced by a Franco-German cartel which would be a danger to British interests.

First Eyewitness Account of Fight

UJONGBU, South Korea, Sunday (UPI). — Delayed. — There is a two-way traffic through this town which is just behind the front in the Korean war. Heading north are the military and mobilized civilian trucks, loaded with ammunition, weapons and men for the front lines. Heading south are the thousands of refugees, driven from their homes by bullets, bombs and shells. They clog the roads and grudgingly give way only when the military trucks lumber past.

All are on foot since the army has forbidden civilian vehicles in the emergency. Some women are carrying their babies on their backs in the traditional manner. Their husbands clutch the bundles containing all that they have had time to salvage from their possessions. It is raining hard but few have umbrellas.

From behind the procession comes the boom of the Northern Korean artillery — big guns firing at the rate of about ten shells a minute.

Fall of Seoul Expected; South Korean Defences Crumbling

SEOUL, Monday. — The fall of this capital of South Korea is expected "within hours" as tank-led North Korean forces massed in the city's outskirts in preparation for a final thrust and called upon defending units to surrender.

Northern forces sweeping across the 38th Parallel boundary line are in Seoul's outskirts and after taking Kaesong and forcing the Imjin River. There were reports that the South Korean government may move its headquarters from Seoul to Pusan, which is in easy reach of American-occupied Japan.

SEoul, Monday (AP). — Communist invaders from North Korea thrust a tank column to the outskirts of Seoul early today (Tuesday) and President Syngman Rhee of South Korea blamed the crisis on the fact that American aid had been "too little and too late."

The 75-year-old President of the American-sponsored Southern region said that "with American aid coming as late as it has it is very difficult to save anything. We have nothing to stop those tanks. Korea is very hard-up because aid was slow in coming. It is too little and too late."

He added, however, that he did not mean that it looks like failure at this time. The U.N. Korean Commission reported today to Secretary-General Trygve Lie that it would do its best to carry out the Security Council's order for Northern forces to cease fire and withdraw but acknowledged in effect that it did not expect the North to comply.

U.N. officials interpreted the tone of the Commission's message to mean that it would try to obtain compliance but did not have much hope. Breaking their silence for the first time the North Korean Minister of the Interior, announced yesterday that "the puppet national defence army of South Korea launched a surprise attack along the entire front of the 38th parallel."

He said: "Enemy troops intruded into North Korea from three places—the western part of Kai Shu district, the Kim Chen district in Kwang province and the Chul Won district in Hang Win province."

"The Ministry of the Interior of the Korean Democratic Peoples Republic has ordered the garrison troops of the republic to repulse the enemy who intruded into areas north of the 38th parallel. At present, the garrison troops of the republic are resisting the enemy in a fierce defensive battle."

"Adventurous Attacks" — The government of the Korean Democratic Peoples Republic has instructed the Ministry of the Interior to warn the South Korean puppet government that the Korean Democratic Peoples Republic will adopt decisive counter-measures against the enemy if the South Korean puppet government does not halt its adventurous attacks towards areas north of the 38th parallel. At the same time, the South Korean puppet government must bear the whole responsibility of all serious consequences that arise from this adventurous attack."

Frontline dispatches reported that the Southern troops were able to offer "almost no resistance," and the American army in Japan cancelled flights of some of its transports laden with supplies for South Korea because of the "rapidly deteriorating situation."

Reports circulated here that the South Korean Government was about to flee southward to Taiden, 90 miles south of Seoul, or to Pusan, 200 miles to the south.

The prospects for the total defeat of the Southern forces through bad morale rather than by being beaten in the field were in evidence. A Northern mobile column that thrust perilously upon Seoul did so by piercing two full Southern divisions engaged in a counter-attack. It reached Seoul's outskirts with little or no resistance for the last dozen miles.

America Must Not Be Involved in War

WASHINGTON, Monday. — President Truman today declared that "Wilful disregard of an obligation to keep the peace cannot be tolerated by the nations that support the U.N. Charter."

He said the U.S. was pleased with the speed and determination of the Security Council in ordering the withdrawal of the invading forces.

Senator Tom Connally, Democratic Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told the Senate that "freedom loving nations" might act "over and above the United Nations if necessary to check Communist aggression."

Senator Connally was speaking during the general Senate debate on the invasion of South Korea. He did not specify what that action might be.

No Obligation for U.S.

He said there must be no hasty action until the U.N. Security Council met again tomorrow on the Korean situation.

Republican Senators agreed unanimously that the Korean fighting should not be allowed to involve America in a war.

Senator Eugene Millikin of Colorado, Chairman of the conference of all Republican senators, said the members agreed that America should provide military supplies and aid for South Korea.

U.K. 'Concerned' By Korea Fighting

LONDON, Monday, (Reuter). — Prime Minister Clement Attlee told the Commons today that the British government were "deeply concerned" that a "breach of the peace" should have occurred in Korea.

Korea was a country which was the special responsibility of the U.N. and where a U.N. Commission was actually functioning, he said.

A Labour member asked whether in view of the Soviet Union's absence from the Security Council, the Prime Minister would find some other means of opening discussions with the Russians through the Secretary-General of the U.N.

Mr. Attlee said: "This is a matter which is before the Security Council and not a matter of opening discussions with the Russians. The situation has arisen between North Korea and South Korea."

There were loud cries of disapproval when Mr. Peter Roberts, Conservative, asked the Prime Minister whether if the North Korean government refused to consider the U.N. resolution, he would advise his representative in the U.S. to ask for the use of the atom bomb on the capital of Northern Korea.

This Speaker, Colonel Clifton-Brown, intervened to say that this was a hypothetical question and was therefore out of order.

AT THE CINEMA

WILLARD Motley's best-seller, "Knock on Any Door" (Ezra, Tel Aviv) has been made into an excellently-produced film from start to finish. It tells the story of a young gangster, "Pretty Boy Nick," who begins by picking pockets and ends up as a murderer, facing the electric chair. Its message is that society is responsible for the criminal and must share the burden of guilt. The picture opens with the killing and the boy's story is told by his attorney, Humphrey Bogart, in a series of flash-backs. The acting hours go to a newcomer, John Derek, who plays the young delinquent with an air of fatality, and really appears to be the victim of circumstances. Recommended. S.W.

Russian Jack London
"THE White Fang" (Tamar) is a simplified film-version of a Jack London story. It is a Russian production which is neither edifying from a scientific point of view, nor exciting as an adventure film. Still, the hunted wolves awaken some interest. The preceding cartoon again gives proof of the fact that the Russians did not create a new dramatic style for the film-cartoon as the Americans did, but apply to this type of film the naturalistic devices of the stage as far as sound and drawings are concerned.

ONE of the strangest characters in the whole history of films is Erich Stroheim. As director and actor, creating films of powerful social-satirical poignancy in America during the twenties, he plays in a French film "Le Signal Rouge" (Gan Rena). This time he is a man who has lost his wife in a railway accident. He is haunted every night by the Airberg Express which made his life worthless. He finds a most unhappy end through the express train, of course. The film is disturbingly unpretentious and the dramatic possibilities of Stroheim's role are nil. Mo.

ESTHER Williams appears as a champion swimmer who wins a bathing costume business (an excuse for the introduction of many girls into a film which is only a semi-musical), and Richard Montalban as the captain of an Argentine polo team. The combination provides the color for Technicolor. Red Skelton plays a masseur who gets himself mistaken for the Argentine Apolo. These are the ingredients of M.G.M.'s "Neptune's Daughter" (Amphitheatre, Haifa) with its parallel plots of one sister chased by a sailor and the other pursuing her man, a situation which permits the same song to be sung twice in two different situations, almost the best thing in the whole film. Then there is a slapdash of a polo match where a very unwilling Red Skelton saves the game. "Neptune's Daughter" follows the usual lines, is amusing and raises some good laughs. Melodramatic.

"LES Deux Orphelins" (Armon) is the French-dubbed version of an Italian film made by Carmine Gallone, who has since made a name for himself in cinema opera. It stars Alida Valli, now in Hollywood and best known as the heroine of "The Third Man." It is a story of 18th century France and crudely melodramatic. Gallone has evidently tried to reconstruct, with some attempt at accuracy, the street life of Paris at the time.

Sophisticated
"BEDSIDE MANNERS" (Studio, Jerusalem) is a sophisticated little comedy with a "Man Who Came to Dinner" touch about test-pilot John Carroll, who is sewn up by Dr. Ruth Hussey after a crash. At the same time she sews up his heart. Charles Ruggles makes a lovable senior uncle doc.
How times have changed! Made in Hollywood in 1945, the picture reflects not the cold war, but a warm friendship for a Russian fellow pilot, an attractive girl in uniform, on a mission to the U.S. With a brand-new war in Korea going on, test-pilot romances may be topical again. FRANGO

Napoleon's 'Edict' Called False

Napoleon's alleged "Proclamation to the Jews of Asia and Africa" of 1799, calling upon them to re-establish under his banner the State of Jerusalem, is spurious, M. Rene Neuville, French Consul-General, said in Jerusalem yesterday.

Lecturing on "Bonaparte before Acre" at the 18th anniversary meeting of the Israel Association of University Women, M. Neuville sought to demonstrate that the Proclamation, of which no original has been found, could not be authentic. A German translation was discovered in 1940 among the papers of a Jewish family in Prague, and its authenticity has recently been upheld by scholars, including Professor A.S. Yahuda.

According to M. Neuville, the style of the document is completely different from the usually concise and terse wording of Napoleon's proclamations. Its contents are also at variance with Bonaparte's consistently proffered view that the Jews in his Empire should everywhere be citizens with equal rights.

President of the Israel Association of University Women, Mrs. E. Mohl, reported that the Association now has more than 24,000 members, graduates of 50 universities from 20 different countries. It has branches in Jerusalem, Tel Aviv, Haifa, and Nafarot. A Hebrew branch may soon be opened. The Association will be represented at the Congress of the International Federation of University Women in Zurich in August.

Dr. Ann Polak, Chairman of the Jerusalem branch, expressed the hope that graduates of the Hebrew University would join the Association. The meeting was attended by the Belgian, Polish and Iranian Consuls-General.

Five New Records at Hapoel Meet

By ALEXANDER ALEXANDRONI, JERUSALEM POST Correspondent
Five new records were created, and one was equalled, at the tenth Hapoel National light athletic championships held in a two-day meet on the Maccabi Stadium ground over the week-end.
The new records, set up included two among the girls with the holders exulting themselves to beat their established records. Jerusalem Hapoel won first place gaining the largest number of points, 163, followed closely by Tel Aviv Hapoel, 142, and Haifa Hapoel, 137 points.
The new records are: Rafael Meiron, of Tel Aviv, with his hammer throw of 33.0 metres which well exceeded Avrutsky of Kfar Saba's 30.81 m.; Rita Bronstein, Tel Aviv, who threw the javelin 34.48 m. to extend her own record by 1.33 m. Meiron's record was 32.5 m. and Rita's 33.0 m.
Over 160 athletes from 30 Hapoel branches took part in the competition which, after a lapse of some years, re-established the team points system for the team prize. Despite the extreme heat, the athletes acquitted themselves well and the team competition introduced an exciting note to the affair. The event gained credit, too, from the fine organization and the high standard of sportsmanship displayed, especially among the youth. In the separate sections, the men's department was dominated by Tel Aviv, who gained top points of 85. Haifa's women topped the list among the ladies, tallying 49 points. Haifa's boys were best, collecting 51 points in that section, while the girls from Kiryat Haim came first in their section with 48 points. Six points were awarded for a first, five for a second and four for a third place.
